

Abstract

A programmable headset is provided including an infrared light detector for receiving infrared light signals to establish operational settings. An apparatus for programming a headset is also provided including a headset and a programming unit that 5 includes an infrared light emitter for communication with the infrared light detector of the headset. The programming unit may also include a cradle for receiving a portion of the headset.

